

Students in Cyber Security (Cryptography) learned how data is represented in computers, how to encrypt and decrypt data using different ciphers using the Python programming language, and the limitations and implications of these encryption methods for modern data security.